Berlin Wall Cycle Path

BERLIN WALL WAS STANDING HERE.

Look forward to a unique bike tour and cycle along the tracks of very young German history. The Berlin Wall maybe is one of the most touching buildings of 20th century and the fall of the wall on 9th November, 1989 was exciting for the whole world. The tearing of the boarder fortification which was cutting the city and people many decades was volitional after the rebound. Only sections are preserved from the wall today, completely preserved are only the old paths along the boarder, where the spectacular Wall cycle path leads along. The daily stages are deliberately short to grant enough time for all the places of interest along this historic route.

Itinerary

DAY
1

Arrival in Potsdam

Arrive early, it is worth it. Visit palace Sanssouci, the summer residence of Frederick the Great, the Russian colony Alexandrowka, the Dutch quarter and the former Bohemian weaver quarter. And the well-known film park Babelsberg, excursion boats and many parks are looking forward to your visit too.

2

Potsdam – Spandau | ca. 35 km

First you cycle to famous Glienicker Bridge, where the USA and the Soviet Union exchanged spies in times of Cold War. Past palace Cecilienhof, where the spreading of Berlin and Germany into occupied zones was agreed in summer 1945 you cycle to Lake Wannsee and Sacrow. By ferry to Kladow. At Groß-Glienicker Lake you can visit an original piece of the wall. Just before Spandau you should stop at fort Hahnenberg which was built in 1888 as protection for the armament centre in Spandau. Look forward to citadel city Spandau with worth-seeing old city.

3

Spandau – Hohen Neuendorf | ca. 40 km

In the morning you cycle through Spandauer Forst, former GDR restricted area which was nominated in 2000 to a "nature reserve of European importance". Along the Nieder-Neuendorfer-canal a detour to the 1000-year-old gigantic oaks is worth it. Past Lake Laßzinsee you cycle to the bank of river Havel. The listed watch tower Nieder Neuendorf (built in 1987) served as observation tower of this section and was the guidance point for 18 further towers. Today this tower accommodates a documentation centre about the division of Germany and its watch towers. In Hohen Neuendorf you can enjoy the rest of this great bike day.

DAY
4*Hohen Neuendorf – Berlin Mitte* | ca. 35 km

The Berlin Wall cycle path leads you today through the nature reserve „Tegeler Fließtal“, a rural swampland. A detour to Lübars is worth it, it is the only preserved village in the urban area. Along the disused Heidekraut track and past the marsh quarter you cycle towards the centre of Berlin. Explore the Bösebrücke and Bornholmer Straße, well-known as villages where the first opening of the boarder on 9th of November 1989 took place, the memorial Bernauer Straße, where refugees tried to escape from the houses through the windows on 13th of August 1961 and cemetery Invalidenfriedhof through where the Wall proceeded. Be astonished about the new main train station and the parliament- and government district. You reach Brandenburg Gate, the magnificence boulevard “Unter den Linden” and the Potsdamer Platz – during DDR times no man’s land. Overnight in the centre of Berlin.

DAY
5*Berlin Mitte – Berlin-Grünau* | ca. 40 km

Along the main quarter of the secret police you cycle to Checkpoint Charlie in Friedrichsstraße – between 1961 and 1990 one of the most famous border crossing. It was only allowed for military- and embassy relatives, foreigners, employees and the representation of the federal republic of Germany as well as GDR officers to use this check point. Within a few kilometres you reach the river with the East Side gallery in Mühlenstraße: in 1990 artists from all over the world painted 1,3 km of the wall with impressing pictures. Via the Oberbaumbrücke (bridge) from 18th century you cycle to the Landwehr canal, Heidekampgraben and Teltow canal to Neukölln and Schönefeld.

DAY
6*Berlin-Grünau – Potsdam* | ca. 45 km

Along the southern end of Berlin the route leads via Gropiusstadt to Marienfelde which accommodated until 1990 more than 1.3 million DDR-refugees in a collective point. Today there is a memorial and a museum. Within short time you reach a 110 hectare big military prohibited zone where the US army practised until the beginning of the 1990’s. Afterwards you continue along the beautiful Teltow canal and Königsweg to the former check point Dreilinden. Along Lake Griebnitzsee you cycle back to Potsdam.
